Past, Present and Future of the Bibliotheca Neerlandica Manuscripta (BNM)

André Bouwman (Leiden University Library) Bart Besamusca (Utrecht University)

The Bibliotheca Neerlandica Manuscripta inventories Middle Dutch texts and their manuscript sources regardless where they are kept now.

Its main focus:

- Middle Dutch texts and their authors;
- the individuals and institutions that were involved in manuscript production (scribes, illuminators, monasteries);
- the former and present owners of manuscripts.

BNM — Past (1/5)

- Documentation system in paper form started by Willem de Vreese in the 1890s (nowadays c. 25 meters):
 - descriptions of manuscripts in 1566 folders filed by present location;
 - transcripts of Middle Dutch texts in 354 folders; auction catalogues, off-prints, photographs, rubbings of bindings.
- Card file indexes (c. 40 meters).
- Related: De Vreese's correspondence (BPL 2998-3000, 3460)

BNM - Past (2/5)

Chronology:

- -1938: private documentation system by Willem De Vreese (1869-1938), Flemish philologist and palaeographer
- 1939: deposited in Leiden University Library; becomes a public documentation system
- 1991: conversion to a production database using Pica software for library automation
- 1995: user database as a part of Leiden's OPAC
- 2006: user database as a part of OCLC's Picarta

BNM database contains information about:

- c. 16,000 complete codices and manuscript fragments
- c. 63,000 text 'manifestations'
- c. 7,000 authority files for texts, persons, institutions
- c. 6,000 publications (books and articles)

The CLARIN project 'e-BNM+' (2013-2016) has migrated the existing data to a new and more flexible database structure, and facilitates the ingest of new types of data (BNM-I).

Voorheen BNM

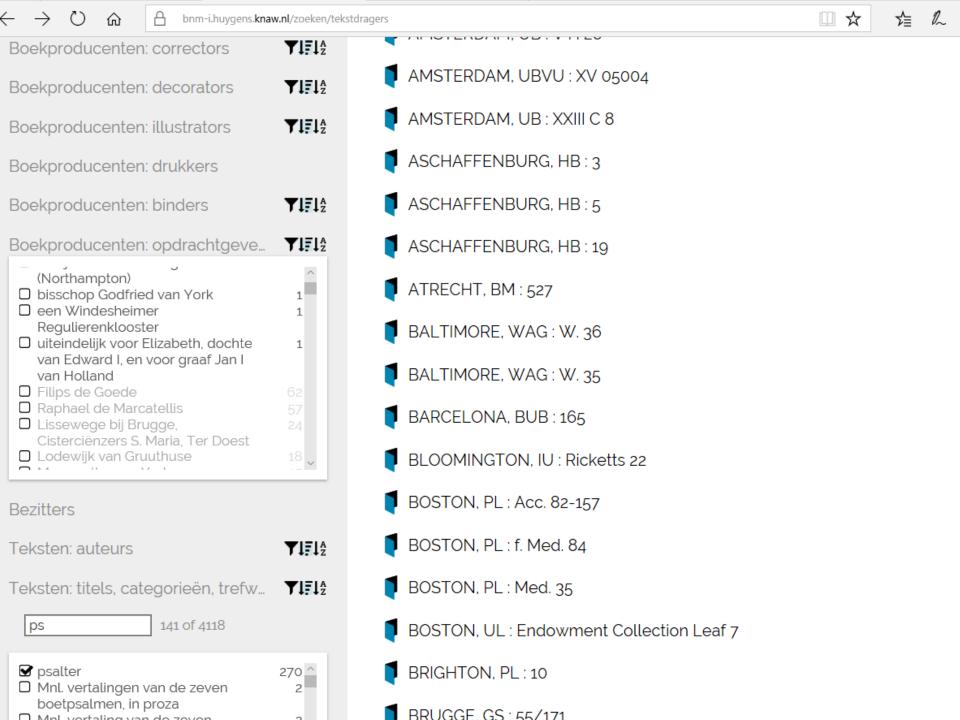

De voorganger van de BNM-I, de BNM, bevat uitsluitend gegevens over handschriften. Rond 1900 legde de neerlandicus en codicoloog Willem de Vreese (1869-1938) dit papieren documentatiesysteem aan voor eigen gebruik. Na zijn dood werd de BNM met overheidssteun aangekocht en ondergebracht in de UB Leiden, waar zij werd voortgezet en uitgebouwd, sinds de jaren 1990 als database, ontwikkeld in samenwerking met en beheerd door Pica/OCLC. Het Ministerie van OCW en NWO financierden diverse invoerprojecten.

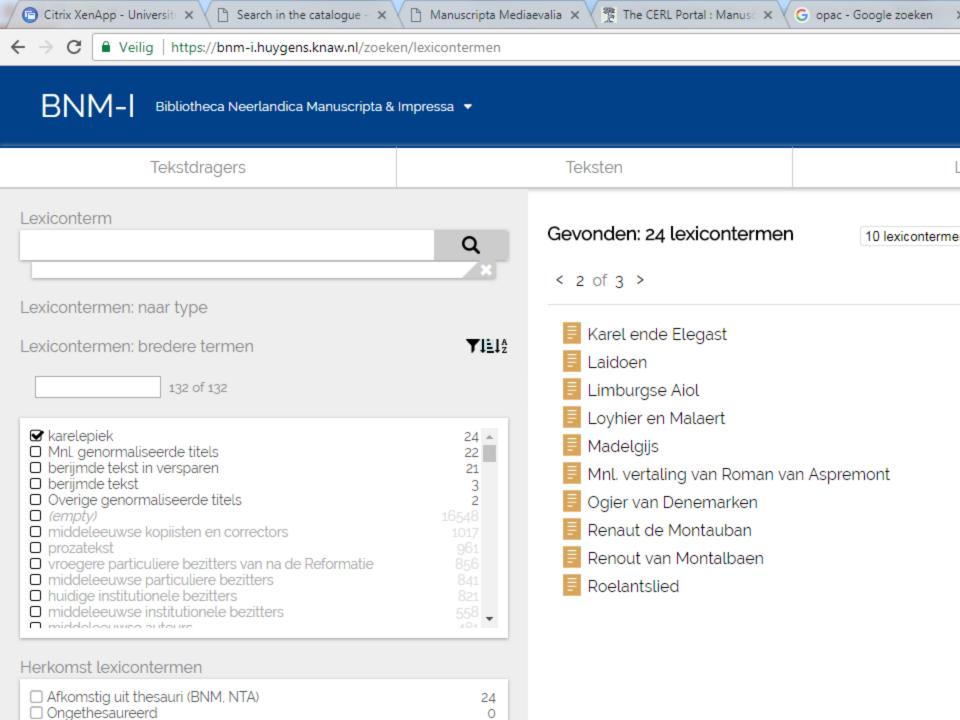

En nu wil BNM-I de studie van de Middelnederlandse tekstcultuur verder ondersteunen door de overgeleverde handschriften en drukken in samenhang te ontsluiten.

Realisatie

BNM-I is in 2013-2015 met financiële steun van CLARIN-NL ontwikkeld door Huygens ING, in samenwerking met André Bouwman (Universitaire Bibliotheken Leiden) en Bart Besamusca (Universiteit Utrecht). Dankzij de nieuwe datastructuur zijn de toegankelijkheid en de zoekfunctionaliteit sterk verbeterd. En met de nieuwe editfunctie kunnen gebruikers (na autorisatie) zelf tekstdragers, teksten, literatuur, lexicontermen (en zelfs -artikelen) toevoegen, aanvullen en corrigeren.

Er is nog het nodige werk te doen: een deel van de handschriftelijke overlevering en de hele gedrukte overlevering van Middelnederlandse teksten ontbreken nog in BNM-I. Voor inlichtingen, vragen en adviezen: bnm@library.leidenuniv.nl

BNM - Future (1/2)

Bibliotheca Neerlandica Manuscripta & Impressa (BNM-I) aims at enhancing the study of Middle Dutch textual culture, because:

- it can include new metadata: about Middle Dutch texts in print (up to 1540); it will inventory not only editions but also every separate copy of an edition as a unique source with its unique history. Estimate: c. 10,000 printed sources.
- it can link more easily to new data: digital facsimiles and other eresources available on the Internet;
- it enables scholars to include:
 - corrections, additions and persistent links
 - short articles on medieval authors and texts (lexicon functionality).

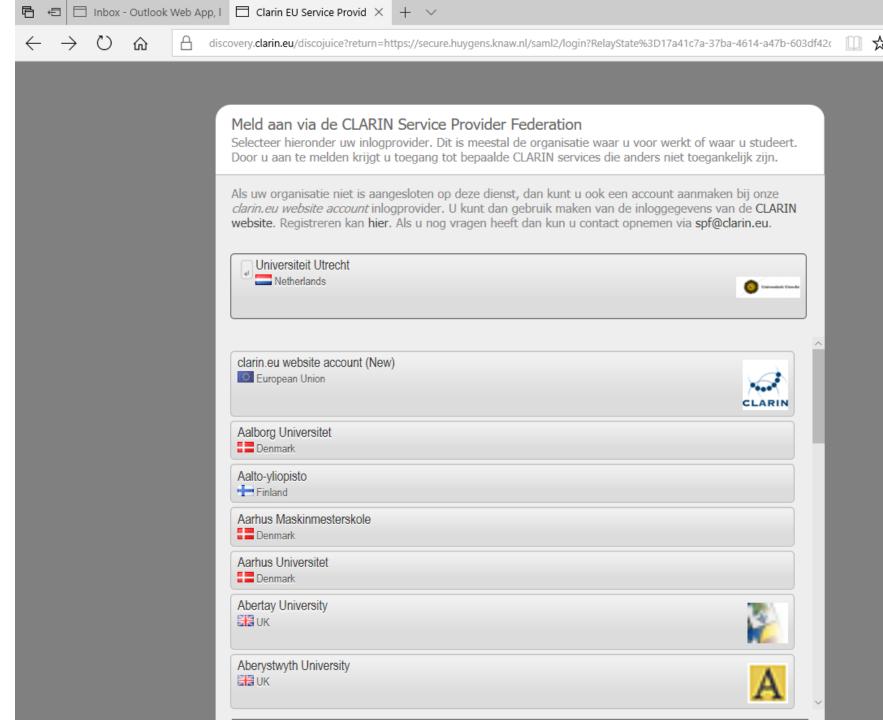

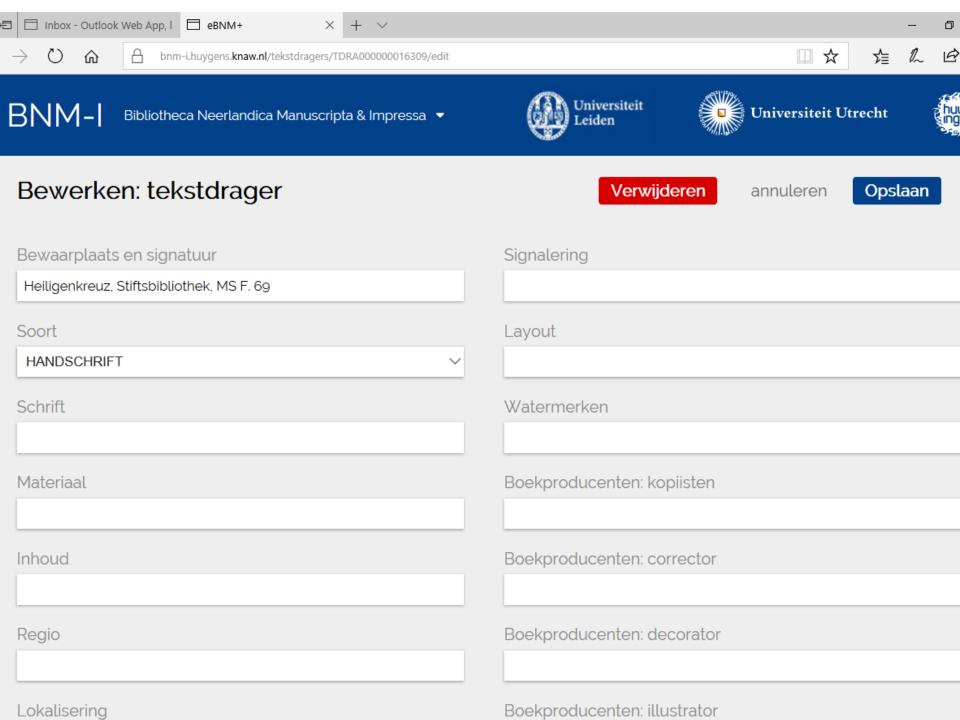

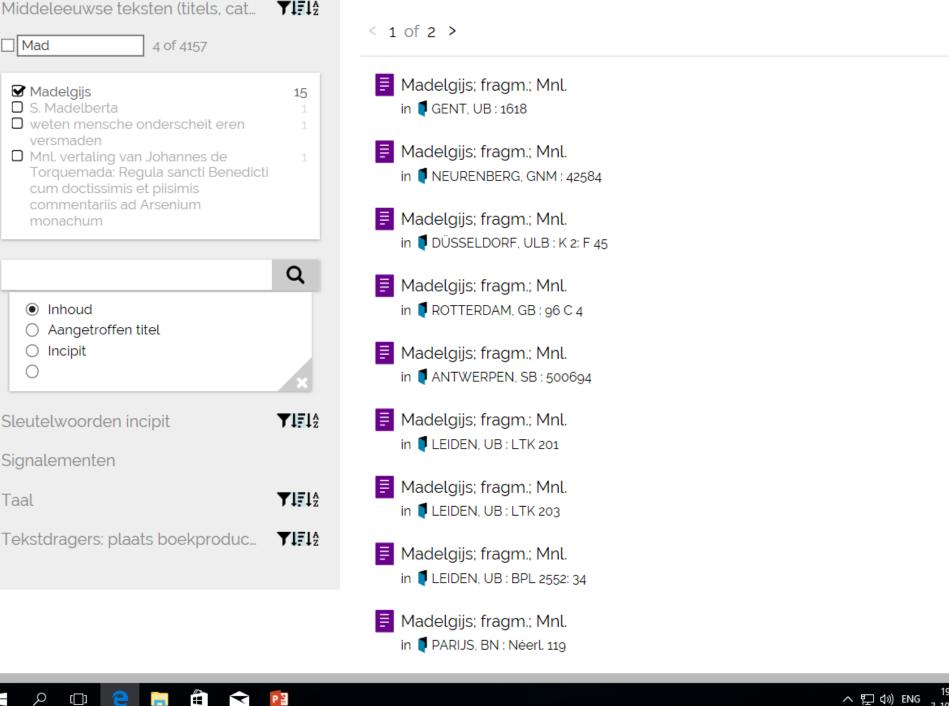

BNM - Future (2/2)

But how to relate to other databases?

- Middle Dutch texts in print: linking to ISTC (Incunabula Short Title Catalogue) and MEI (Material Evidence in Incunabula)?
- There are descriptions of the same manuscript in more than one database. Should we link to corresponding bibliographical records in other databases and online catalogues? Or link to one unique identifier for each medieval manuscript? Or create an interface that can search several databases simultaneously? (cf. CERL Portal)
- How to best use available digital facsimiles of manuscripts on institutional servers on the internet? Adhere to the IIIF protocol?
- Database collaboration might facilitate interdisciplinary research. Example: the study of textual culture in medieval multilingual Flanders does not only involve texts in Middle Dutch, but also in Latin and French. Scholars will have to combine data from several databases.
